within the art world and how it shaped them as women and artists.

Joan Braderman followed the now geographically dispersed New York feminist art collective from Venice, Italy to New Mexico, tracing down the women who produced "Heresies: A Feminist Publication on Art and Politics" between 1977-1992. In this new film, Braderman traces the collective's old and new challenges to gender and power, asking how and why they came together to originally demand the right to be heard as female artists.
